“An Educative and Empowering Notion of Leadership”

Paul Roberts OBE

Chair of Trustees – Creativity, Culture and Education

“Educative and Empowering”

- Making activity meaningful for others
- Working with people rather than on
- Empowerment
- Framing their own problems, collectively defining other possibilities
- Working in increasingly reflective ways
- The role of clinical supervision

W John Smyth (Educational Management and Administration 1985)

“It is the exclusive priority of the greatest thinkers to let themselves be influenced by others. The lesser thinkers on the other hand merely suffer in their restricted originality and close themselves off thereby from the inflowing from afar”
